

Diane Rastatter nominated for outstanding service

Jami McMannes Special to the Estes Park Trail-Gazette
Posted: 09/18/2009 01:00:00 AM MDT

Diane Rastatter is nominated by Amanda Giacalone of United Way of Larimer County for the outstanding service she is providing in Estes Park.

Rastatter volunteers in a number of different capacities for United Way. Currently, she is helping to spread the word about Estes Park United, a volunteer-driven fundraising campaign that provides resources for local human service agencies dedicated to helping people in Estes Park. Rastatter has spoken to different groups in Estes Park about the initiative and has stood outside Safeway with information about the campaign to educate individuals about United Way's work. Rastatter continues to help plan and implement the Estes Park United campaign and even staffs the United Way office in Estes Park each week.

Rastatter is very passionate about United Way and does everything in her power to spread the message about the work of United Way in Estes Park. She is an amazing advocate for the Estes Park community and an invaluable volunteer.

"We would be lost without her," says Giacalone. "Diane is an incredible person who does so much amazing work for this community. I am blown away by her unwavering commitment to Estes Park and United Way.

"Diane has no limits. She is always willing to lend a helping hand no matter the circumstance. If there is a way that she can help, she's there. I admire Diane very much," said Giacalone. "She's an absolute All-Star."